COVID-19 Essential Services FAQs

Updated: Monday, May 4, 2020

Please find a list of FAQs below which address many of the submissions received by EOHED relating to “COVID-19 Essential Services \(/info-details/covid-19-essential-services\)” guidance associated with Governor Baker’s March 23, 2020 Emergency Order (which was updated and extended on March 31, 2020).

If a service qualifies as essential, it may continue operations. Both public-facing and private services that remain open should implement certain practices and procedures to reduce the spread of COVID-19 covered in this guidance \(/doc/guidance-regarding-the-operation-of-essential-services\).

As always, we urge businesses to follow social distancing protocols for workers and customers in accordance with guidance from the Department of Public Health.

All submissions through the Essential Service Designation Request form \(/forms/essential-service-designation-request\) are actively reviewed by EOHED staff.

Further guidance will be provided on a rolling basis through this FAQ page which will be updated regularly.

General Questions - Essential Services Related

- If my business or organization is defined as providing “COVID-19 Essential Services,” do I need a physical designation or certificate to continue my brick-and-mortar operations? NO. If covered, a business does not need to take any action or receive an essential service designation, or certificate.
- If my employer provides essential services and I am reporting to work, do I need to provide or carry with me any sort of documentation? NO
- If my city has deemed me non-essential, but the Governor has deemed me essential (or vice versa) should I stay open?
 - If your business provides an essential service, you are not required to stay open, but you may. If the Governor has deemed your business essential, your city or town is prohibited from deeming your business non-essential and preventing you from remaining open if you are complying with the Governor’s order.
- If my business is non-essential, can I go to my place of business to perform routine maintenance on the facility, attend to perishable products or property, or perform other necessary tasks?
 - YES. If you are the owner of a non-essential business, you may go to your business facility as needed to take care of crucial tasks that cannot be done remotely or to retrieve necessary materials or documents. Your employees may not go to your bricks-and-mortar place and may not conduct business activities on-site unless your business is following the newly updated guidelines for remote fulfillment that are spelled out below.
- Can non-essential businesses stay open if they shift to exclusively curbside pick up? NO
- Can employees of non-essential businesses still come in to do non-essential work? NO unless the business and its employees are following the guidelines for remote fulfillment spelled out below.
- Can non-essential businesses bring in a small number of employees in order to remotely fulfill online or phone orders? YES if following the remote fulfillment

guidelines below

- Facilities must be closed to the public, as the allowance is for the fulfillment of remote sales/orders only
- Employees may only be engaged in the packaging and delivery/shipping of phone and online orders, not the manufacturing of those product
- Operating hours must allow for sufficient ongoing off-hour sanitation/cleaning
- All employees must wear face coverings while on-site
- All employees must maintain 6 feet social distancing and employers should stagger employees within the facility to ensure social distancing
- Any deliveries made by employees must be 'no-contact' deliveries: items must be left in mailboxes, mailrooms, garages, lobbies, at doorstep, or similar no-contact drop-off points
- Employers must stagger shift start/stop times and breaks/lunchtimes in order to minimize contact
- Facilities must have readily accessible hand sanitizer and hand washing facilities for employee use
- In a closed facility that is used for remote fulfillment:
 - There must be enough space within the facility for all employees present to be able to maintain six feet of social distancing
 - In a facility under 10,000 square feet, a maximum of 3 employees may be allowed on the premises at a time
 - In a facility between 10,000 – 30,000 square feet, a maximum of 5 employees may be allowed on the premises at a time
 - In a facility more than 30,000 square feet, a maximum of 7 employees may be allowed on the premises at a time
- Employee workspaces must be cleaned frequently, following public health guidelines

- Employers must require employees to self-administer a temperature check prior to beginning each shift. Any employee with any symptoms, including a temperature over 100.0 degrees, must not report to work and should self-isolate, contact their doctor and follow medical guidance.
- Employees in quarantine, due to exposure to a known case of COVID-19 or someone with COVID-19 like illness, must remain under quarantine for 14 days since day of exposure and not report to work
- Employers must strictly adhere to any further workplace guidance
- Facilities found in noncompliance with this order must be closed immediately
- Facilities unable to fully comply with all of these parameters shall not operate.
- If I work outside and can socially distance, can I keep running my business even if it isn't essential? YES in some circumstances (see below).
 - If the service a business provides is not on the essential services list, that business must cease all in-person activities at its bricks-and-mortar facilities. These non-essential businesses are encouraged to work remotely. Businesses that do work remotely, whether as part of their normal activities or as a result of this order, must maintain social distancing requirements: six feet of separation between all employees, and between employees and members of the public.
- What should I do if it is unclear if my business is essential, or if I have submitted a request for my industry to be added to the essential services list?
 - If a business, organization, or facility is unsure about whether or not it is considered "non-essential" it should:
 - First, carefully review the Order, the essential services list and the posted FAQ to confirm that the business, organization, or facility is not addressed in some way.
 - Second, if "non-essential" status is still unclear, make a good faith determination about whether it is "non-essential", based on: i. the Order's purpose, which is to "minimize all unnecessary activities outside of the home during the state of emergency"; and ii. how similar businesses, organizations, and facilities are treated under the Order.

- Third, if the business, organization, or facility decides to remain open pending more detailed legal advice, strictly adhere to all applicable guidance from the CDC and DPH regarding social distancing and environmental cleaning and disinfection.
- What government services are still available (register of deeds, probate issues etc.)?
 - Consistent with the essential services list, state and local government can determine which of their government workers (and therefore services) are critical. Please consult www.mass.gov (/) and your city or town hall for information about specific services
 - The essential services order does not apply to the courts; information on which court services are available can be found here \(/guides/court-system-response-to-covid-19\)
- Are suppliers and persons in supply chains for essential businesses allowed to stay open? YES if they are supplying a core product relevant to the COVID-19 response.
- Am I allowed to report a non-essential business not closed to my local board of health? YES
- I am an essential company with more than 10 employees. How do we comply with best practices? You are allowed to operate while maintaining social distancing measures
 - See CDC guidance for business
- What are the rights of employees who believe they are working under unsafe conditions or are not essential and are being told to come into work?
Contact \(mailto:safepublicworkplacemailbox@mass.gov\) the Division of Labor Standards.
- Who is responsible for enforcing the essential services order?
 - The order is enforced by the Department of Public Health, along with local boards of health or their authorized agents. Local boards of health will, as a practical matter, lead enforcement efforts in most cases. If necessary, state and local authorities may call on the assistance of State or municipal police to enforce the order. Violations may result in civil fine of up to $300 per violation, or criminal charges. Initial complaints should be directed to the local board of health.

- What should a local board of health do when it receives a complaint?
 - Upon receipt of a complaint, a local board of health should contact the business alleged to be in violation of the order to determine if the activities in question constitute an essential service. Local boards may direct the business to cease operations if they determine the business has failed to comply with the order, and may take such other enforcement action as it deems appropriate, including imposing fines or referring the matter for criminal prosecution.
- Who should the local board of health contact if they have questions about interpreting or enforcing the order?
 - When a local board of health needs help interpreting or enforcing the order, the board may contact the Executive Office of Housing and Economic Development for further guidance by sending any email to:
covid19.biz@mass.gov (<mailto:covid19.biz@mass.gov>).
- What if I reported an apparent violation of the order to my local Board of Health, and nothing happened?
 - Please follow up with your local board of health to determine the what action, if any, was taken in response to the complaint. If you are unable to receive of response from the local board of health, you may contact the Executive Office of Housing and Economic Development for further guidance by sending any email to: covid19.biz@mass.gov (<mailto:covid19.biz@mass.gov>).

Distribution of Goods in Ecommerce and Distribution Centers

The list of essential services includes:

Workers supporting ecommerce through distribution, warehouse, call center facilities, and other essential operational support functions.

- What does “ecommerce” mean in the context of the essential services list?
 - Ecommerce has a limited meaning under the Essential Services Order. Although ecommerce in other contexts can refer broadly to any commercial transaction conducted electronically on the Internet, for purposes of the Essential Services Order, ecommerce means telephone, internet, or other electronic transactions that result in (1) the shipping of goods and products that themselves would qualify a seller as providing a COVID-19 Essential Service if the seller offered the products through other means and these were the only products the seller offered; or (2) or the shipping of goods and products that are necessary for other COVID-19 Essential Services providers to conduct their essential work; or (3) the shipping of goods and products from a warehouse or distribution center that includes within its normal inventory goods covered in (1). This reflects the intention of the Order to substantially limit the number of workplaces open during the state of emergency in order to reduce out-of-home activity and transmission of the virus.

- Based on this rule, operations that offer only products such as furniture, most clothing for consumer purchase, cosmetics, jewelry, recreational equipment, or other consumer specialty items are not COVID-19 Essential Services. These operations are required to close their bricks-and-mortar locations in Massachusetts although they may be able to conduct remote order fulfillment if following the remote fulfillment guidelines specified elsewhere in this guidance document.
- I am a retailer with a bricks and mortar location, but I also sell products on-line. May I continue to sell products on-line while my store is closed?
 - It depends. Essential businesses may sell products online in accordance with the ecommerce guidance above. Retailers required to close their bricks-and-mortar locations under the Order because they do not provide essential services may only fulfill online or phone orders from a Massachusetts bricks-and-mortar location when following the remote fulfillment guidelines specified elsewhere in this guidance document.
- Can all distribution centers, warehouse, and call centers continue to operate?
 - No. Distribution centers, warehouses, and call centers can continue to operate only if they support the types of ecommerce described above or are engaged in limited remote fulfillment in accordance with the remote fulfillment guidelines specified elsewhere in this guidance document, including in particular the limitations on total number of employees who may be present at a business premises engaged in approved remote fulfillment.
